ISG International to Host Human Resources Seminars

High turnout expected among Delmarva businesses

CAMBRIDGE, MD – March 1, 2006 – ISG International, Inc. will be hosting two seminars at their Cambridge, Maryland headquarters on March 22nd and 23rd, entitled HR for Small Business.

The three-hour seminars are open to area businesses and will cover topics such as employment law and how it affects small business, harassment and discrimination in the workplace, establishing effective policies and procedures, regulatory compliance, progressive discipline, the basics of interviewing and more. Professionals who are responsible for the human resource functions of their businesses are encouraged to attend.

ISG International is the only independent insurance brokerage on the Delmarva Peninsula with in-house personnel dedicated to the training and administration of HR solutions to area businesses. Balancing out its insurance and employee benefits offerings with a service such as this is one way that ISG positions itself favorably against other insurance providers on the Eastern Shore. “Our clients and prospective clients find real value in the fact that ISG does far more than just sell insurance policies” says Tonya Plylar, ISG’s Director of Business Solutions. Plylar went on to comment that “HR is such a critical, and often overlooked, area in today’s small business environment. We are pleased to be able to shed some light on this topic for businesses that may not be in a position to staff HR on a full-time basis.”

Registration for the event is $49.00 per person and light fare is included. Payment may be made via check to ISG International, or via credit card. Seating is available on a first-come, first-served basis.
